Short Synopsis:

A stifled, young Hollywood actress slips into a world of mouthwatering delicacies, sweet heartache, and bitter tears when she takes an unlikely job with an inspired rebel chef in Paris, France.

Long Synopsis:

“Prestige Ingredients” is a short film that showcases the dynamic current food culture of Paris, France, through a clever, fictional narrative. Alia Shawkat stars as Alia, a young, out-of-work actress who takes a job with Pierre, a chef in Paris. Pierre, played by real-life chef Pierre Jancou, needs the specific talents of an actress to complete an inspired dinner event. Alia becomes immersed in the rich and varied restaurant scene and ends up having to dig deep within herself to deliver what she has promised to Pierre. The concept for Pierre's dinner and Alia's role therein will be the big reveal of the film's climactic scene.

Biographical Info:

Danielle Rubi-Dentzel, b. 1974. She is a dual citizen of Switzerland and the USA with a BFA from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago. She has exhibited her photography work around the world and has curated art shows in Paris. She is the founder of gastro travelogue The Trail of Crumbs and travels extensively photographing stories for editorials. She lives between Santa Barbara, CA, Marfa, TX, Paris, France and Grindelwald, Switzerland.

Adrian Rubi-Dentzel, b. 1980. Born in California, he received his BA in creative writing and is actively a filmmaker and furniture craftsman/designer. His family is responsible for bringing the carousel from Europe to America and comes from a long line of craftsmen and artists. He lives between Santa Barbara, CA, Marfa, TX and Paris, France.

In their directorial debut Adrian and Danielle Rubi-Dentzel showcase the vibrant current food culture of Paris through a fictional narrative. The film stars Alia Shawkat (Arrested Development), Paris based chef and restaurateur, Pierre Jancou, and comic/actor Redouanne Harjane. Drawing from their work in Paris on food-centric documentary television shows like Anthony Bourdain's "No Reservations" and "Mind of a Chef", as well as their international community of creative friends, the Rubi-Dentzels have filled "Prestige Ingredients" with talent both in front of the camera and behind. The film's dynamic production team includes Emmy-award-winning "Mind of a Chef" cinematographer Ethan Mills and musician Mikael Jorgensen of Wilco.

Liza Cardinale, Editor : Cardinale has been was on the editorial team with HBO and Showtime series such as The Big C, Eastbound & Down, Togetherness and True Blood
